Helping our Kiowa Citizens is a great thing, but investing in our Kiowa Citizens is life changing. The 10year plan brought forward by Chairman SpottedBird is unique as much as it is ambitious; however, the success of this plan will depend greatly on the cooperation and support of the Kiowa Tribe as a whole.

The Kiowa Executive & Legislative Branches came together for a retreat to discuss the perception of the 10-year plan, a vision brought forward by Chairman SpottedBird & Vice-Chairman Tsotigh. The retreat included an agenda to discuss the aspects of the plan, which is designed to reorganize and develop economic growth for the Kiowa Tribe.

The focus of this plan begins with the Kiowa Tribal Operations. It is important for Tribal Operations to be consistent with the Kiowa Constitution that was voted upon by the Citizens of the Kiowa Tribe. Now that the Kiowa Tribal Trial Court is open, the government structure is now complete with all four divisions in operation. This creates an opportunity for new divisions and departments; several existing will remain, while a few others may phase out for the recreation of a better service program. A total of four Executive Directors will be in place for the four divisions: Tribal Operations, Health and Human Services, Education Agency, and Housing.

Kiowa Incorporated (Kiowa Inc.) is a concept created by Chairman SpottedBird during his 40 years of in business & economic development along with tribal governance. He explained the experience taught him of the possibilities for Indian Country throughout the nation. His desire to bring this knowledge and experience to the Kiowa Tribe and southwest Oklahoma is the reason he chose to run for office.

Kiowa Inc. will use the "Harvard Model" that was first introduced to Tribes by the study and project, the Harvard Project on American Indian Economic Development. This module is proven to be successful for other Tribes throughout the nation.

The proposed Kiowa Incorporated – a Tribal Section 17 Corporation will be wholly owned by the Kiowa Tribe. It will also be comprised of a number of subsidiaries that will fall within six initial business divisions (Culture & Tourism; Retail & Distribution; Real Estates & Agriculture; Business & Technology; Government Contracting; and Gaming & Hospitality) in order to create a dynamic business collaboration that come together for two primary goals: (1.) create profits that support the Kiowa Tribal government to provide services for the Kiowa people; and (2.) create sustainable jobs for the Tribal Citizens. Once those priorities are satisfied, the Tribe will then reach out to other Tribal & non-tribal neighbors that will serve as the catalyst and help rebuild the economy of southwest

The exciting concept that the 10-year plan brings forward is a Kiowa Tribal Empowerment Center (KTEC). Upon Chairman SpottedBird learning about the development of Financial Empowerment Centers, he discovered that Tulsa, Oklahoma is one of the participating cities across the United States. The target is low-income residents within the cities that establish Financial Empowerment Centers. By using this model, KTEC will focus on Kiowa and other Tribal Citizens who live in southwest Oklahoma.

The KTEC will provide services through the financial empowerment center and will be available to the large number of Kiowa Citizens who reside within the Kiowa, Caddo, and Comanche counties. By creating the revolving loan fund and accompanying credit improvement and financial building training, tribal citizens will receive support to directly help them learn how to live and thrive in a global capitalistic society.

The KTEC will be organized under the umbrella of the proposed Kiowa Community Development Corporation (KCDC). The KCDC will be a non-profit corporation that will establish both non-profit and for-profit subsidiaries to create the bundle of services to empower Tribal people, generate revenue for the Kiowa Tribe, and create a new job market for tribal citizens.

Vice Chairman, Jacob Tsotigh agrees that the 10-year plan is ambitious and expects questions to arise as the plan continues to move forward. The main goal is to meet the need for affordable housing for Kiowa Citizens along with credited services that were not accessible before. "...in the near future we will have more a strategic plan with outlines and time frames to clearly explain what we are trying to do for our Citizens, said Vice Chairman Tsotigh.

One may be skeptical of a 10-year plan considering the term in office is only four years; however, both SpottedBird & Tsotigh feel confident about this plan and hope that the Citizens will continue show their support. "I think that once our Kiowa Citizens see how we are trying to not only better service them but also empower them with new opportunities," said Vice Chairman Tsotigh, "they will continue to keep us in office and support our goal in completing this plan."

Kiowa Kids Camp

The Kiowa Kids Camp was held during Spring Break at the Kiowa Community Center, March 13-17, 2023. The camp was a success thanks to the programs and volunteers involved. Each Program took one day out of the week to host. The children ranged in ages between 10-18 and had plenty of opportunity to learn more about their Kiowa culture while having fun and making new friends.

Kiowa Vice Chairman, Jacob Tsotigh, welcomed the participates on the first day and expressed how great it is to provide the youth with such events because they are the next generation of the Kiowa Tribe.

The camp included Kiowa storytelling, etiquette, dance lessons, and how to properly take care of their regalia. Team building activities and a field trip to Riverside was also included. The final day consisted of a Health Fair along with fancy dance lessons by James Chalepah.

Participant Gracie Haunpo expressed that she enjoyed the camp. "I was shy the first day because I didn't know anyone," she said, "but before the day ended, I made new friends and got to hang out with them everyday."

Art is created with the skill and imagination of an artist who is capable of expressing feelings and emotion as well as beauty through their work. The inspiration for such visuals can come from a variety of places, including the annual gathering of the Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior Society.

Perhaps it was meant to be for the awardwinning artist, Margaret Drake, to visit southwest Oklahoma during the fall of 2018. Her long-time friend, Terry, invited Drake to come and meet some of the warriors and families who were part of a very unique society, the Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior Society.

Upon arrival, Drake was unable to describe all the emotions and feelings she felt as she watched and listened to the song and dance; yet she was inspired. Thanks to some friendly connections, Drake received a picture from the Society's photographer, Lester Herragara. She soon began the project and worked continuously throughout the year to bring the 'Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior' sculpture to life. By the end of 2019, Drake completed the sculpture and contacted the Society about her project.

Plans were beginning until the Covid-19 pandemic shut everything down. It was quite a wait but she stayed patient and agreed to present the sculpture to the Kiowa Tribe once arrangements were approved. Society Member, Robert Short, scheduled a small gathering this late winter for the artist to unveil the sculpture with the officers of the Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior Society and the Kiowa Executive Branch present.

The presentation created a number of emotions for those that witnessed the unveiling. The 28x11x11 bronze sculpture stood tall and has so much detail for the viewer to appreciate. Every angle from head to toe, even the expression makes you appreciate and admire the artist's work. Drake once devoted a year to study three-dimensional portraiture, after she began her focus on figurative art.

The model for the sculpture was a photograph of the late Dixon Palmer, a long time Society member. He is missed by many and the Kiowa Black Leggings Society couldn't be prouder of the photograph and sculpture that was created of his image.

Vice Commander, Blas Preciado, announced that the Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior sculpture will be displayed at the First American Museum in Oklahoma City later this year. He stated that more details will be revealed once the exhibit is scheduled. A second piece will be displayed at the Kiowa Casino.

Senate Bill 429

Senate Bill 429 allows an enrolled student in a public-school district, charter school, or technology center school, to wear tribal regalia on school property and during any school functions. The bill also includes students enrolled in a public institution of higher education to wear their tribal regalia on the institution's campus and at any institutional function. Bill 429 also allows a school district board of education, the governing board of a charter school, the governing board of technology center school, and the board of regents of an institution of higher education, to adopt a policy to specify the characteristics of any garments, jewelry, or other adornments or objects, the school or institution finds that will endanger the safety of a student or others.

This bill is important because for decades, generations of Indigenous students suppressed their culture identity in order to seek success in the educational systems. Currently there are Kiowa Citizens enrolled in many Oklahoma Public Schools including Carnegie, Anadarko, Mountain View, Oklahoma City, Norman, Moore, and others. A total of 271 Kiowa students attend school in the Oklahoma City metro area alone. The majority are impacted by this issue.

Kiowa Tribal Vice-Chairman, Jacob Tsotigh, and the Kiowa Tribe Department of Higher Education Director, Toni Tsatoke-Mule, both attended the discussion meeting on February 8, 2023, at the Oklahoma State Capital to show their support. The Senate Bill 429 passed unanimously, resulting in a major victory for Indigenous students and the state of Oklahoma.

The Kiowa Higher Education Program provides support to tribal citizens who are pursuing a higher level of education.

The approximate translation is "We are learning Kiowa ways" or "We are learning the Kiowa way of doing things, thinking, and speaking". In the early phases of the program, it was decided that, when possible, we will use the Kiowa name for the program (as opposed to the English name). The elder mentors at that time decided that having language knowledge was not the only thing at stake. We were also learning about the "Kiowa way" of doing things and Kiowa thinking. It was decided that this title encompassed all of those ideas.

Kevin Wayne Bohay was born in Lawton, Oklahoma on March 8, 1978 to William Ray Bohay and Imogene Kaulaity Bohay. He attended North Rock Elementary school in Shawnee, Oklahoma, Capital Hill High and Crooked Oak Middle and High School. He passed away at home in Oklahoma City after a short illness. He was Sac and Fox and Kiowa. He was in the Sac and Fox Bear Clan.

Kevin showed his stubbornness at an early age. He didn't like his picture taken although mom was right there. At one and a half years old, he refused to wear diapers and had to wear his big brother undies until dad came home and took him to Walmart. His family all have a ton of "Kevin Stories" that have kept their spirits up.

Kevin was baptized at Moore First Indian Baptist after surrendering to our Almighty, Jesus Christ, as his savior. Being a self-taught student of history, he knew scripture and read the Bible front to back several times. He studied philosophy and religion. He had an unsurpassed love for music which included bands like Queensryche, Judas Priest, and Iron Maiden. He was a great chef and when he came home from work and mom was making supper, he would take over and finish the cooking. At an early age, he was taught to be a hard worker and learned that he had to graduate from school, and either go into service or learn a useful trade-- no couch surfing would do. If he got laid off or something, his previous employer always called him back because Kevin worked so hard, others would quit because they couldn't do his job-- his answer was always "No way! You had your chance!" He eventually went to work for several years at ATC then his last job. He did not believe in quitting.

He was especially close to his great grandparents Steve and May Bohay, grandma Marjorie Wolf and Auntie Iris Bohay (Sas) whom he spent most of his time with. Now he is with the rest of his family in heaven until the rest of us will someday join him. He is so much loved and will be missed.

Kevin leaves behind: Mother: Imogene K. Bohay Sister: Jacquelyn Denise Bohay Aunties: Mary Kaulaity Bohay and Ioleta Kaulaity Carubelli Uncles: Philip Kaulaity (Sharon), Henry J. Kiowa Tribal Trial Court

"Personally, I believe we don't often receive the fairness and objectivity in the other courts," stated Kiowa Tribal Chairman, Lawrence SpottedBird, "so it is a big day for us to take care of the affairs of our Tribal Citizens."

Since the ratification of the Kiowa Constitution in 2017, the Kiowa Tribe began their plans to develop and open a court system. Several obstacles including the Covid-19 Pandemic, created a number of challenges. Still the endeavor to have a Court System persisted. It has taken a certain amount of time but the Court is now in operation thanks to the dedication and help of others, some of whom are no longer with us.

The grand opening was filled with citizens of the Kiowa Tribe who traveled near and far to witness this historic day. An opening prayer and cedaring was provided by the Native American Church, Kiowa Chapter. Proud members of the Kiowa Black Leggings Warrior Society brought in the colors and flags as part of the opening ceremony.

TRIBAL DISTRICT COUNTY

A sense of pride and excitement filled the room as this was a moment in history and a milestone for the Tribe's sovereignty. "We are a sovereign nation as the Kiowa Tribe and we need to be able to determine our own decisions based on customs, traditions, and laws, "exclaimed Vice-Chairman Tsotigh, "now that the Court is open, we have fully attained our role as a sovereign nation."

Like many other Indigenous Tribes throughout the United States, the Kiowa relied on the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) for all criminal and civil cases committed within Indian Country. History reveals that the 'fairness' of the court's final decision in a case is at times questionable. "Personally, I believe we don't receive the fairness and objectivity in the other courts; so it is a big day for us to take care of the affairs of our Tribal Citizens," stated Chairman SpottedBird.

The Kiowa Supreme Court Justice, Eldridge Onco, stated that as a sovereign entity, the Kiowa Tribe should have the ability to interpret their own laws. Now that a judicial facility is in place and open, the Tribe is now ready to look to the future to be able to exercise in full its sovereign status. This is huge news because now any criminal or civil cases that happen within the jurisdiction will now be handled by the Kiowa Tribe. "The Kiowa people, generations form now will look back upon this day and say that this day marks the time when they the Kiowa Tribe became a fully functioning government," said Justice Onco.

Chairman SpottedBird expressed his hope that the Kiowa Tribal Trial Court will bring respect and fairness for the Kiowa people. He also stated that this is just the beginning of many more positive changes to come. "It is a proud day for me as the Chairman of our Kiowa Tribe and we are taking a huge step today to be complete, and now we move forward, 2023 will be a big year, an exciting year for the Kiowa Tribe."

The Kiowa Tribal Trial Court received over one thousand cases that have been transferred from the BIA. The Court held their first case on January 3, 2023, in the afternoon after the grand opening.

Dr. Dupoint Receives Client of the Year Award

By Dianna Hadley

Most know him by the nickname 'Joe Fish'; truthfully, he is a man that holds several titles within the Kiowa Tribe and professionally. If you ever take the time to sit and visit with him, he will tell you that he is a humble man sharing the gift that he was given during his lifespan. The gift of knowledge through the many conversations he shared with the elders of the Kiowa Tribe during the time of his youth. "...as I sit here and reflect on my life and the things that have brought me to this point, I understand that it is for a reason. I must share what was given to me." Dr. Phil Dupoint.

Dr. Dupoint always felt that it was of great importance to continue the oral teachings of the Kiowa that are passed down through each generation. One might say that it has become his purpose, or mission, in life at least that is what he believes. So, when his health took a decline resulting in the amputation of his leg, he grew with worry.

It was back in 2018 that Dr. Dupoint went through his first leg amputation. Recovery took time but he did heal and was hopeful with the plan of therapy so that he could someday walk again. Things took a quick turn when his other leg needed an operation. This created more challenges; still, Dr. Dupoint chose to keep trying.

He said, "at first I didn't understand why I am still here, especially like this; but I kept going." He continued by saying that part of him felt down because he didn't want to add stress to his family, particularly his granddaughters because they have children that need them. He said I once told them that I can admit myself to a nursing home and they could come visit whenever they wanted to. "They told me no, so I had to listen since I could not drive myself there," he said with a laugh.

The support of his family gave him hope; however, he still had his moments of depression. Dr. Dupoint received assistance through the Kiowa Tribe for his home in Carnegie, then received additional help with the Apache Tribe when he moved to Anadarko. It wasn't until later that he heard about applying for assistance with the State of Oklahoma, Vocational Rehabilitation Program.

Dr. Dupoint was amazed at how quickly the program responded to his application once approved. Representatives came to his residence and began modifications for easier access with his scooter. Then something unexpectedly happened, an instructor came out with a vehicle designed to help individuals like him drive. This car was special, the gears and gas pedals are at arm length. After instruction and a series of questions, he felt comfortable with the controls. Then the instructor told him that it was his turn to drive.

Dr. Dupoint stated that he was so excited to just drive that he didn't care the which route they took. The instructor informed that he did not know Anadarko so he was in charge of the drive. Right away he decided to drive by the BIA agency then the clinic, Dr. Dupoint admits that all he really wanted was to be seen; however, no one seemed to be out. He then drove around the Gold River Casino north of Anadarko, but he was disappointed to not see anyone he knew. Dr. Dupoint then had an idea and drove to Walmart on the other side of town. To his delight after driving a few rounds in the parking lot, he saw people he knew and had the chance to wave and say hello. He especially enjoyed the look of surprise on people's faces who saw him driving that day. The following weeks, the instructor had him drive to Chickasha then Oklahoma City. On a trip home one day the instructor asked Dr. Dupoint if he was ready to take his driving test. "...I have drove myself for large number of years, yet I was nervous," he began, "but I passed and got my license."

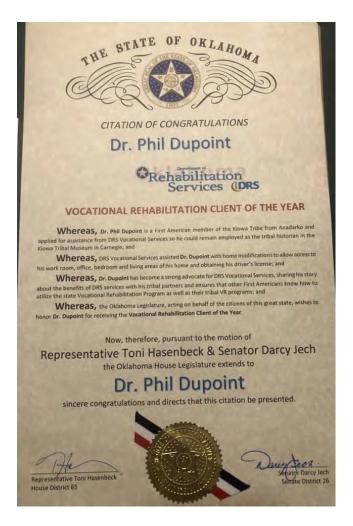

Obtaining his driver's license was a big deal for Dr. Dupoint, his smile was extra that day and it gave him confidence. He began to set goals and worked hard every day to achieve them. His next goal is to walk on his own. Dr. Dupoint is looking forward to therapy and is building his strength and balance every chance he gets. "...during an appointment I had the chance to stand with their tools to keep my balance, it felt so good I bounced a little," he said,

"I'm ready, one of these summers I am going to dance with my boys in our arena." The arena that Dr. Dupoint is referring to is the Kiowa Gourd Clan Ceremonial, a special place that holds so many memories and feelings that only a Kiowa would understand.

Dr. Dupoint continues to share his story with others willing to listen. He said a lot of Native American do not know what is available to them. True one may receive help from their respective Tribe's but there is more assistance available with the state of Oklahoma. The DRS Vocational Services assisted Dr. Dupoint with modifications, making home and work life a little easier. His testimony about the DRS services with his tribal partners, ensures that other First Americans know how to utilize the state Vocational Rehabilitation Program as well as their Tribal VR programs.

For this reason, the Oklahoma Legislature, acting on behalf of the citizens of the state, has decided to honor Dr. Dupoint as the Recipient of the Vocational Rehabilitation Client of the Year Award. Dr. Dupoint stated that he was surprised to be honored with such an award. His advice to others is to take care of yourself. "You have to face yourself and hold yourself accountable; take care of your body and want to do it. You cannot expect anyone else to do it for you," he said, "last is to pray and have faith, the rest will follow...."
